The double-sided column clamp makes the router extremely torsionally rigid, guaranteeing perfect routing results. Users have a clear view of the router, ensuring results with absolute precision.

The routing depth can be adjusted to the nearest tenth of a millimetre in seconds. This can be changed quickly and safely thanks to the easy-to-access work area.

Extremely versatile: Its wide variety of system accessories, such as cutters, routing templates, guide rails and the jointing system VS 600 means that its possible applications are virtually unlimited.

Forms the perfect combination with Festool mobile dust extractors for healthy, precise, time-saving work.

DUST SOLUTIONS

Silica Dust

Silica dust is particularly dangerous in both natural and engineered stone. When worked on, silica is released as a fine dust, 100 times smaller than a grain of sand. These fine grains can remain airborne for hours and penetrate deep into lungs. There is no treatment to reverse this damage or safely remove dust. The required dust extractor may vary depending on the different type of stone you are working with.
